SATURDAY, May 12. 1722.

To the Author of the London Journal.

SIR,

HOW cautiously and partially Men in Power are to be truſted, and how much to be reſtrain'd, appears from hence, that almoſt every civil Evil begins from Courts, and the Redreſs of every civil Evil from an Oppoſition to the Preteniions and Exceſſes of Courts. This is ſo univerſally true, that no Nation ever continued happy, whoſe chief Magiſtrate was its abſolute Maſter; and no Nation miſerable, whoſe ſupreme Power was properly check'd and divided. Nations are then Free, when their Magiſtrates are their Servants; and then Slaves, when their Magiſtrates are their Maſters: The Common-wealth does not belong to them, but they belong to the Common-wealth. Tacitus ſays with great Truth, nec unquam ſatisfida potentia ubi nimis eſt. "Power "without Controul, is never to be truſted." Ever Nation has moſt to fear from its own Magiſtrates; becauſe almoſt all Nations have ſuffer'd moſt from their own Magiſtrates.

Cicero mentioning the Condition of Cilicia, of which he was Proconſul, in a Letter to Appius Pulcher, ſays, that he "was mov'd by Pity as well as Juſtice to relieve from their "Miſeries the undone Provincial Cities, undone chiefly by "their own Magiſtrates." It ſeems Cicero was that ſort of whimſical Man, that he had really a Heart to do good to the People whom he govern'd——an odd and impracticable Character, which, had he lived here, would have render'd him utterly unfit for any manner of Preferment. He did not ſo much to know that he was to make the moſt of his Place and his Power, let what would become of the People——A Leſſon which other Governors have amply learned.

Ariſtotle makes it the great Argument and Proof of Liberty, that they who command do alſo obey. And indeed all legal and juſt Power being but a Truſt, whoever executes the ſame, does an Act of Obedience, as well as Command: And every Truſt is beſt executed, where thoſe who have it are anſwerable for it; alſo it never will be executed; but, where it is great and publick, is much more likely to be abuſed, violated, and turn'd to the Deſtruction of thoſe, who, for their own Preſervation, gave it. Not in a People to be told, that ſuch as want to be truſted with extraordinary Power of any kind, have always been Enemies to arbitrary Power; for ſo are all Men, when they have it not, and expect no Advantage from it. Who was a greater Patriot than Sir Thomas Wentworth? And who was a more arbitrary Miniſter than Thomas Wentworth Earl of Strafford? All Men are for confining Power when it is over them, and for extending it when they arm it. Oliver Cromwell was once heartily in the Principles of Liberty; and afterwards more heartily in thoſe of Tyranny: And I could name two great Patriots in England, who, when they were out of Power ſeem'd to place the Sum of publick Spirit in encroaching upon the Royal Authority; and when they were in Power, to know no other Law but the Prerogative Royal. So much is the ſame Man to himſelf in different Situations, and ſo ſtill very conſiſtent with the Genius of human Nature!

Men ſometimes do actually Good in order to do Evil. Sejanus, incipiente adhuc poteſtate, bonis conſiliis mutuebatur vulgus. "Sejanus, in the beginning of his Adminiſtration, "would found the Reputation of a good Miniſter in lauda- "ble Meaſures." But there never prov'd a worſe Miniſter than Sejanus. Soliman, the Turkiſh Emperor, us'd to ſay, that a Prince, to be well ſerv'd by any Miniſter, muſt never uſe any Miniſter above once: And this Saying is thus far true generally, that Men the longer they grow in Power, the worſe they grow. I think it is Tacitus who ſays, Superbire hortines etiam annua deſignatione: Quid ſi hoſtem per quindecim annos agitent. "If an annual Election to Power, makes Men "inſolent; what muſt be their pitch of inſolence, if they hold "it five or ſeven Years?" Ariſtotle finds great fault with the Senate of Sparta, for being perpetual; and I think he ſays, that an unchang'd or an hereditary Senate falls into Dotage.

Many of the Eccleſiaſticks have been for truſting their Favourite Princes (and no other) with unlimited Power over others: But in every Thing that regarded themſelves and their Intereſt, they have never fail'd to ſtipulate for the ſtricteſt Limitations upon all Princes, even upon thoſe whom over the reſt of the World they wiſh'd Arbitrary, and endeavour'd by every Means to make ſo. Nor did ever any Man give up the Freedom of his Country, but he meant to preſerve his own; and hop'd to continue a Freeman, as a Reward for his helping to make other People Slaves; and no Man ever ſet up a Tyrant but in hopes of going Shares in his Tyranny; and upon theſe Terms and Expectations alone it is, that any Body of Men, or indeed any Army, is brought to aid and eſtabliſh any Uſurper. Paſſive Obedience was always intended for other People than thoſe who preach'd it. Intereſt cannot lie; tho' he does, who ſays that he will ſubmit to Servitude when he can avoid it.

Who would eſtabliſh a Bank in an arbitrary Country, or truſt his Money conſtantly there? In Denmark the Miniſters and Minions of the Prince think their Money ſafeſt out of his Dominions, and generally tranſmit the ſame to Hamburgh, and other free Cities, where the Magiſtrates have no divine Right to lay violent Hands upon what is none of theirs. Even what we gain by Rapine in a Land of Oppreſſion, we are willing to ſave by the juſt Laws of Liberty, in a Country of Liberty. In England it is ſo, and in our own free Conſtitution; if the Bank of England was put under the abſolute Direction and Power of the Court, I doubt Stock would ſoon grow very cheap, and Sellers multiply very faſt. Or if the Government of the Bank, which is purely Republican, were improv'd into Monarchical; I fancy our higheſt Monarchy-Men would rail at the Change, and haſten to ſell out, notwithſtanding their inviolable Attachment to the divine Right of Monarchy——Unleſs perhaps there think that abſolute Monarchy does beſt protect their Power, but a Free State their Money. I am indeed of Opinion, that upon ſuch a Change, the Bank would be broke and ſhut up in three Days.

All this ſhews, that even Men who are againſt Liberty in General, do contend for it in Particulars, and in all Particulars which affect themſelves. Even a Lauderdale, a Tyrconnel or a Jefferies, who were all for making the Crown abſolute, as long as they could be, as they were, the abſolute Miniſters of Oppreſſion under it, would none of them, I dare ſay, have encourag'd the Maxim of the Prince's rewarding his Miniſters and faithful Oppreſſors, which the Law ſtrikes, as well as they themſelves were entitled to that Reward) and as much much as the Turkish Genius of Government did in other Inſtances ſuit their own.

When we hear any ſort of Men complain, as ſome ſort of Men do frequently complain, that the Crown wants Power; we ſhould ask them whether they mean over themſelves? And if they anſwer, no, as certainly they will if they ſpeak Truth, we may further ask them, why ſhould they judge for themſelves any more than others, or claim to themſelves a Liberty and an Exemption which they will not allow to others? The Truth is, they who complain thus, do only want to encreaſe the Power of the Crown, becauſe by it their own would be encreas'd and other Advantages acquir'd.

The Fox in the Fable, wanting to rob a Henrooſt, or do ſome ſuch Prank, humbly beſought Admittance and Houſe-Room only for his Head; but when he had got in his Head, his whole Body preſently followed: And Courts more crafty, as well as more craving than that deſigning Animal, have ſcarce ever got an Inch of Power, but they have ſtretched it to an Ell; and when they have got in but a Finger, their whole Train has followed. Piſiſtratus having procured from the City of Athens, fifty Fellows armed only with Cudgels, for the Security of his Perſon from falſe and lying Dangers, improv'd them into an Army, and by it enſlav'd that free State. And I have read ſome where of the States of a Country, who having wildly granted to their Prince a Power of raiſing Money by his own Authority, in Caſes of great Neceſſity; every Caſe ever afterwards was a Caſe of great Neceſſity, and his Neceſſities multiplied ſo faſt, that the whole Wealth of the Country was ſwallowed up to ſupply them: As it always will be in every Country where thoſe who ask are ſuffered to judge what ought to be given. —— a Practice contrary to common Senſe, and which renders Liberty and Property perfectly precarious, and where it is continued, will end in taking without asking.

I have heard of a Court ſomewhere Abroad, which having aſked upon a particular Occaſion four hundred thouſand Pounds of the States, found Ways and Means of ſtretching that Sum to two Millions. It was obſerved of the ſame Court, that it had the Art of raiſing Mole-hills into Mountains, and of ſinking Mountains into Mole-hills; of diſbanding Armies without breaking them; of encreaſing Debts by the Means of paying them; of being engag'd in an expenſive War during a profound Peace; of gaining for the Country at a vaſt Charge, Advantages which the Country never reap'd, nor ſaw; of employing Money obviouſly againſt the Intereſt of that Nation, and yet getting the Nation to pay it; of purchaſing other Countries at the Expence of their own, and againſt its Intereſt; of procuring from the Country at one Time a great Sum, without telling why it was wanted, but promiſing to tell, and yet never telling; and in fine, after many other the like Feats, of obtaining by an Act of Security, Remiſſion for all their paſt Faults, without owning any, and yet going on to commit more: For, as Tully well obſerves, Qui ſemel verecundiæ fines tranſierit, eum bene & moderate poſſe uti impudentem. Cicer. Epiſt. ad Lentulum Quinti Fil.

But theſe Things concern not us; and I only bring them for Examples, like other old Stories of Greece and Rome. I hope we ſhall never fall into the like Miſfortunes and Miſmanagements our ſelves.

I am, SIR,
Your moſt humble Servant,
CATO.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

IF our Advices from the North may be credited, Prince Natiſkin ſtill ſeems to ſtand faireſt for the Czar's eldeſt Daughter: And although a certain Miniſter has made ſome advances in Favour of Prince George of Heſſe Caſſel (Brother of his Swediſh Majeſty) yet it is thought the Duke of Holſtein will be preferred, in regard he ſtands nearer the Succeſſion of the Crown of Sweden than the other. The chief Body of the Forces to ſerve in the Expedition towards the Caſpian Sea, the Czar propoſes to command in Perſon: Beſides the Troops already marching under General Allart, 40000 more will be employed, whereby he propoſes to gain almoſt all the Borders of that Sea: And although on this Occaſion he may be abſent four Months, yet ſuch a Number of Troops will be otherwiſe employed, as to give his Neighbours great Uneaſineſs, ſome of the beſt of which are in Motion towards the Frontiers of Poland and Germany. ——— Factions daily increaſe in Poland, where it is thought the Nobility will proceed to a new Confederacy and rather accept the Czar's Propoſals than ſuffer the Election of the Crown to be fixed in the Houſe of Saxony. They are under ſtrong Apprehenſions of an unwelcome Viſit from the Czar, and have ſent a Deputation to him, to know his real Intention with reſpect to them. ——— The Courts of Denmark and Sweden afford but little ſince our laſt. ——— 'Tis ſaid, the Squadron which the States General are equipping to act againſt the Algerine Rovers, is to be reinforced by eight Ships, and will Winter in the Ports of Spain: And although the Spaniſh Miniſter makes a great Noiſe about the Ships of Spain which are to join them, yet they are not much relied on. ——— From the Court of Vienna we learn, that Prince Eugene will very ſoon take a Tour into Italy, to view the Condition of the Imperial Towns there. The Emperor ſuſpecting the Deſigns of the Czar, 'tis ſaid will ſecure all the Domains of the Duke of Mecklenburg, into whoſe Country twelve Pruſſian Battalions are ſent, but for what Reaſon is unknown. It is alſo reported, that there is a Treaty on Foot between his Imperial Majeſty and the King of Sardinia, for the Ceſſion of that Iſland to his Imperial Majeſty, in Conſideration of a ſuitable Equivalent. ——— The King of Pruſſia is frequently reviewing his Troops, and all the General Officers have Orders to hold themſelves in a Readineſs to march as ſoon as the ſeveral Regiments are reviewed. There being Matters in Treaty between the Czar and his Pruſſian Majeſty, a Perſon from Moſcow is ſuddenly expected at Berlin, in order to negotiate the ſame. ——— All our Letters confirm the Marquis de Lede's Arrival at Paris the 6th Inſtant, whoſe Buſineſs is only conjectur'd at; and there are not wanting ſome will have it to regard the Affairs of Italy. 'Tis alſo ſaid, the French are making great Preparations in Alſatia, as if a new War was to break out; and that the Imperial Garriſons of Fribourg and Philipsburgh, and other Frontier Towns, are upon their Guard. ——— The Preparations for War are carried on with great Vigour throughout all the Spaniſh Monarchy. Vaſt Quantities of Proviſion and Ammunition are ſhipping off on Board 16 Men of War, and ſeveral other Ships at Barcelona, and 16000 of the regular Forces will embark on board them; all the Seamen have two Months Pay in advance. New Fortifications are building at Majorca, and 500 Carpenters, Maſons, &c. have been ſent from Barcelona for the greater Diſpatch of that Work. Our Advices from Italy mention, that vaſt Stores of Corn are amaſs'd in the Countries of Tuſcany and Parma, where Soldiers are liſting for the Service of the Spaniards, who have already 8000 Men at Porto Longone, ſo that Commotions in Italy ſeem unavoidable. ——— The Pope it ſeems, lays Claim to Parma and Placentia as Fiefs of the Roman See, and with the Aſſiſtance of ſome Princes of Italy, he is forming a ſort of an Army for the Security thereof.

LONDON.

THE Sale that was laſt Week at the South-Sea Houſe, of the Houſhold Goods of Sir Theodore Janſſen, Bart, and of Arthur Ingram, Eſq; late Directors of the South-Sea Company, amounted to Three Thouſand Pounds.

On Thurſday Sev'night came on at the South-Sea Houſe, the Election of Commanders for their two new Sloops, when fourteen Candidates appearing, the Directors adjourned that Affair.

Monday laſt being the laſt Day of the Term, ſeveral Printers, Publiſhers and Hawkers appear'd upon their Recognizances at the King's-Bench-Bar, whereof two or three were diſcharg'd, but a great many continued till next Term.

The ſame Day, at the ſaid Court, Mr. Bolton, Sword-Cutler and Haberdaſher of Hats on Ludgate-Hill, who on Friday before was taken up by a Meſſenger on Account of a treaſonable Motto on three Sword-Blades, which we hear were brought him by a Gentleman to be mounted with Hilts, and were by him ſent to a Workman to be fitted up, appeared upon his Recognizance, and was continued.

The New Practice of inoculating the Small Pox has been lately introduced in ſeveral Parts of the Country, and in ſome with extraordinary Succeſs; particularly at Halifax, in Yorkſhire, where Dr. Needeton, the Phyſician upon the Place, has inoculated the ſame on about threeſcore Perſons in the Town and Neighbourhood, without any Diſaſter to any one of them.

We hear, that the late Mrs. Boon of Lee, near Deptford, who died but a few Weeks ago, has left ſome conſiderable Benefactions to poor Clergymen, and to Clergymens Widows, to be diſtributed by Dr Stanhope (Dean of Canterbury) and the Rector of Lee.

We hear, that Col. Churchill, who is gone for the Court of Spain, has is likewiſe in Commiſſion to viſit the Ports of Gibraltar and Mahon.

Sir Godfrey Kneller is dangerouſly ill at his Houſe in Great Queen-ſtreet.

The Lord Viſcount Carleton was on Sunday Morning laſt, at his Seat at Richmond, ſeiz'd with an Apoplectick Fit, and lay as dead for ſome Time; but we hear he is much recovered.

Thirty Horſes that belong'd to the Smugglers upon the Coaſt of Suſſex, have been lately ſeized near Rye, which it ſeems uſed to be employ'd in carrying Brandies, &c. about the Country.

Country. 'Tis thought their Masters will hardly oppose to chuse them; and to prevent their being otherwise carried off, a Guard of Soldiers watch them Night and Day.

On Saturday last his Majesty in Council, ordered Writs to be issued out for proroguing the Parliament to the 5th of June, and the Convocations of Canterbury and York, to the 19th of the same Month.

Extract of our private Advices concerning the Plague.

Orange, April 27. The Distemper spreads more and more among us: Forty Persons have died here since the 16th last. and 7 or 8 now die a Day.

Aix, April 24. Letters to Day from Marseilles say, that the Vessels which had been gone thence for Leghorn, were returned without being permitted to enter that Port. This was occasioned by the Alarm they had taken, that the Plague was broke out there again, which is entirely false, Marseilles being in a very good State of Health, without dead or sick, or any Person suspected of the Distemper.

Avignon, April 30. Our Quarantine of Health commenced the 15th Instant, and we are daily growing better and better; no Body has fallen sick for some Days; and they that are in the Infirmaries are in a fair Way of Recovery.

St. Ambroise, May 1. We have nothing here but good News, and there are actually but two Women sick in all the visited Part of the Country, one of which is at Alais, and the other at Lautac.

A Day or two ago, a Cart passing near Fleet-Ditch drove over a young Child, and broke its Skull to Pieces.

On Friday was Sev'night, was acted at Mr. Newcomb's, formerly Mr. Morland's School, at Clapton, near Hackney, the late Mr. Hugh's Play, called, The Siege of Damascus, with great Applause, they having the proper Habits and Decorations. 'Tis said, the Lad that acted the Lady was adorned with Jewels to the Value of Six Thousand Pounds; there was a great Number of Gentry to see the Performance.

The 4th Instant his Majesty's Ship the Lyon (and not the Lyme as hath been said) was commissioned; to the Command of which Capt. Elford is appointed; and as that Gentleman left the Deptford Guardship, at Plymouth, for her, Captain Williams succeeds him therein.

Our Paris Letters afford us the following remarkable Story, viz. About 3 Years ago one Mrs. Plante of that City was with Child, which at last came to Labour Pains, but she was not delivered; however the Child fell from the Womb and lodged below it in the inside of her, which did not disable her from going about her Business; in process of time she was with Child again, and about 3 Months since was brought to Bed, which Child is now alive and well; but the Mother having been in great Torment ever since, died the 3d Instant, and the next Day she was opened by the Surgeons, who found the dead Child in her lower Parts. They are to give the Academy a Dissertation upon so extraordinary an Accident.

Last Week a Bailiff's Wife in Chiswell-street, hanged her self; the Inquest which sat on the Body concluded her Lunatick. It seems she was one of those cunning Women who imposed on the ignorant Females which apply'd to her to have their Fortunes told, &c.

They are now enlarging of Galley-Key, which joins to the Custom-House, having fix'd large Piles into the River a considerable way, in order to lay a Foundation of Stone.

Last Week a poor Girl, about Eight Years of Age, was arrested at Ratcliff for Seven Shillings due for Schooling, and carried to Whitechappel Prison, a Place famous for burying People alive for Trifles.

They have Ballasted the great South-Sea Ship with Iron, in order to ship her Cargo forthwith.

A few Nights ago a Porter carrying a Portmanteau, rested without Aldgate, and while he was making Water a Sharper of the Town went off with it. The poor Man is like to have a very bad Job of it, the Owner affirming there was in it One Hundred and Fifty Pounds in Money, and Bank Notes to a considerable Value.

On Sunday Morning last one Mr. Bridges, an eminent Operator Merchant, as he was going out of Town on Horseback, was thrown in Mitring-Lane, and in the Fall had his Skull fractured and some of his Ribs broken; however, it is thought his Life is not in Danger. It seems this unhappy Accident was occasioned by a Dog, which barking after the Horse, and startling of him, the Gentleman was thereby thrown.

The Day following a Sentinel's Servant in Tower-street, robbed his Fellow-Prentice to Bed, on some Words which happen'd between them; and it is feared the Wound will cost him his Life.

Last Week one Mrs. Maxey deceased as she was at her private Devotion in her Chamber, although the Minute before she was in perfect Health.

On Thursday the 3d Instant Mr. Pickdot, a Woollen Draper in Grace-Church Street, was married to a Daughter of Mr. Wilcox's a Linnen Draper in Cheapside, at the Quaker's Meeting-house, at the Bull and Mouth, on which Occasion a great Concourse of People assembled there. It seems there is a very plentiful Fortune on each Side.

A Place being broke up last Week in Kingstreet, Westminster, in order to cleanse the Commonshore, a Man fell in and broke his Ribbs: And the same Night two Horses fell in, but received no great Hurt; all which was owing to a Watchman that was order'd to attend there with a Light, but instead thereof was fuddling at a Geneva Shop.

To the Author of the London Journal.

SIR,

I Must desire you to do the Justice which is refused by a Brother Journalist of yours, I mean the Weekly Journal; the Manager of which Paper not only publishes personal Scandal on all who are not in his Faction, but refuses to let the Injured have a Liberty to deny the Scandal in his Paper. This is the Case of the Gentleman, whose Answer to a Libel I send you. The Manager of the Weekly Journal, to whom I went at the Request of the injured Gentleman, refused in any Manner or Form whatsoever to let him vindicate himself; he said if he thought he had wronged him, he might bring an Action, and that he knew the worst of it, and was always ready to stand a Law Suit.

Instead of denying the Lye in his former Paper, he has inserted a new Load of Scandal in his last, which will be answered by the injured Gentleman.

I doubt not other Persons have been used by this scandalous Libeller in the same Manner, and hope it will be a Service to the Publick to give them Notice of this Enemy of humane Society; who is so far from endeavouring to do Justice to those he abuses, that on the contrary, he sets them and common Honesty at Defiance, and claims an uncontrouled Power to vilify and ruin the Reputation of honest Men at Will and Pleasure. No Body sure can pity him for falling into Tribulation for his Political Performances, when they see that no private Person is safe from his unjust Attacks and Endeavours to rob them of their Reputation, which is a Robbery of as mischievous a Consequence to the Publick, as those committed on the Highway.

Your humble Servant,

On Monday last Mr. Pelham, an Apprentice, and Mr. Shefford, a Cork, belonging to the Commons, going to Dinner at Young Peacock's in the Mint, were shew'd up Stairs into a Room where one Lee and his Companion had sate down to Dinner before. The said Lee imagining they were come to apprehend him, drew upon them, and wounded them both, as also his Friend, (who he thought had betrayed him) as likewise Eight or Nine others, though none were wounded mortally. He was at last secured, and being carried before Justice Lade, he asked the Face of a Madman (as indeed he had done before) but was by him committed to the Marshalsea, whither he was carry'd with uncommon Difficulty. He is thought to be a Highwayman, betray'd by a guilty Confidence, whom none else had hitherto laid any Thing to his Charge.

From

From the Westminster Letters of the 7th Inst.

On Thursday last Mr. Dean, Messr. of his Majesty's Yeo[man] [Guards], [illegible] Gentlemen for the service, [illegible] Abercorn that his Majesty [illegible] Members [illegible] of the same Measure, put forth [illegible] Pamphlet [illegible] Letter [illegible] Commander of a sufficient [illegible] Squadron.

The 24th Foot continued on [illegible] and those Chichester, and there [illegible] Shoes & make that Difficulty are greatly [illegible] many having left the Town upon it; who rather than be under the [illegible] for the future, may probably think it advisable to [illegible] mentioned on them.

The Norfolks, this [illegible] Portsmouth, lastly failed to the Downs, as also the Forse and Swift Sloops of [illegible] Squadron.

On Sunday Night last Orders were given for all the Officers to repair to their respective Regiments, with all Expedition, in order to encamp at an Hour's Warning. On Monday the Ground was mark'd out in Hyde-Park, and they began to pitch Tents there, and form a Camp, (Necessaries being sent from the Tower for that Purpose.) On Tuesday all the Foot Guards which were not upon Duty marched, and took their Posts there, being view'd by His Majesty and Royal Highness as they passed by; and as the Horse Guards and Grenadiers are order'd to hold themselves in a Readiness to march, they will soon encamp there, as will also the Duke of Bolton's Regiment of Foot Guards, and the Lord Cobham's Dragoons. The same Day 3 Men out of each Company of the Foot Guards, with a proportionable Number of Officers, commanded by Col. Carpenter, were ordered to the Tower on Duty, where they are to continue for 15 Days, and until relieved by the same Number. On Wednesday 30 Field Pieces (six Pounders) 4 Mortars, and 14 Powder Waggons, were sent from the Tower to the Camp in Hyde-Park. 'Tis said, that six Regiments are ordered hither out of Ireland, and a sett of Scotland; as also that Lieutenant General Withers and Major General Tatton have orders to be in Camp during the Time it is in Hyde-Park. All the other Officers are gone to their respective Posts; and we hear the Lord Carpenter is fit out for Scotland.

Various are the Reports concerning this Encampment, which has occasioned a considerable Run upon the Bank and a great Fall of the Stocks: But 'tis hoped the Peoples Fears will soon vanish; for we hear that by his Majesty's Order, on Tuesday last it was notify'd to the Lord Mayor of this City, that the Reason of the Military Preparations was not that any Invasion or Attempt was design'd or apprehended from Abroad, there being not the least Ground to suspect that, but because certain Informations had been given that some disaffected Persons in these Kingdoms have held frequent Cabals, which gave great Cause of Jealousy of some traiterous Attempts against the Government, and made these Preparations at this Time absolutely necessary. And we have Authority to say, that Mr. Stanhope, his Majesty's Minister at the Court of Madrid has been allowed, that the Naval Armament which is making in the Ports of Spain, could not be employ'd in any Expedition contrary to the Engagements between that Crown and ours: — As also, that all the Irish Regiments which were quartered upon the Coasts of the Kingdom of France, will be removed up into the inland Parts of the Country, by the Regent's Order; and Directions have been issued, forbidding any Person or Persons from France hither without a Passport from that Court.

Last Wednesday in the Evening, the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, accompany'd with several of the most eminent Gentlemen Council, went upon the King at St. James's, to return Thanks to his Majesty for the Notification they had received the Day before, by his Majesty's Order, from the Right Honourable the Lord Townshend, concerning the military Preparations now on foot; and to assure his Majesty, that they are ready to hazard their Lives and Fortunes in the Defence of his Person and Government, which Address his Majesty receiv'd very graciously, and confer'd the Honour of Knighthood on Edward Bonfoy, Esq;

We hear that the late Earl of Sunderland has left to Spencer, and Exchequer and Seals like Presents, as his Lady and Children.

We hear, that last Saturday Night the Directors of the South Sea Company, and those of the Bank, came to an Agreement, and settled many Difficulties that had subsisted in the Stocks, to the satisfaction of both those. The Bank to lend one or other the South Sea Stock bespoken for as may not Come in Two and Twenty Months time; and not likewise subscribe annuities themselves, as they do their own Stock. This Agreement between the Directors will greatly [illegible] the general Course of their Companies for their Affairs [illegible] Credit, for which we will be still answerable [illegible] Stocks, as heretofore in the publick Confusion.

We have a Parliament so ordered as shall that Assembly of the Parliament from [illegible] Spring Equinox, for the Month of March.

The Prices of Wines as this Market fell at present as follows.
